

Open House April 2, 2011

Faculty Presentations, 9:00 am – 2:30 pm

Rhodes Tower 502 (Inside Michael Schwartz Library)

Session I: 9:00-9:30 am

Evan Lieberman (Communication).
From the Classroom to the Set: The Challenges of Teaching Film Production. This presentation will focus on the challenges of training students in moving image production, a field that combines technology, business, and art.

Session V: 12:00-12:30 pm

Paul Skalski (Communication).
Advanced Video Game Technologies: Research and Implications. This session spotlights research on advanced video game technologies being conducted in the CSU School of Communication, and focuses on the future of gaming.

Session II: 9:45-10:15 am

Holly Holsinger (Theatre and Dance).
Lesson One: We Are All Actors. Learn to implement the tactics and behaviors of everyday human interaction through this exploration of the basic principles of acting.

Session VI: 12:45-1:15 pm

James Marino (English).
English for Fun and Profit. A presentation about the skills English majors learn at Cleveland State and the many uses for those skills after Cleveland State.

Session III: 10:30-11:00 am

Regennia Williams (History).
Zora Neale Hurston in the History of American Arts and Letters. From the Harlem Renaissance through the era of World War II, Zora Neale Hurston was recognized as one of the most gifted and prolific writers in America. This lecture will provide a brief introduction to the author's life and discuss the impact of her most famous novel, Their Eyes Were Watching God.

Session VII: 1:30-2:00 pm

Peter Dunham (Anthropology).
CSU's Maya Mountains Archaeological Project: A Retrospective. Dr. Peter Dunham explores one of the last great wilderness areas in Central America. Join him as he revisits some of the amazing finds from his National Geographic-sponsored fieldwork in Belize. Highlights include over a dozen previously unreported ruins, a host of ultra-rare wooden artifacts, and two ancient Maya chocolate groves still growing after 1,200 years.

Session IV: 11:15-11:45 am

Murali Nair (Social Work).
Everything You Want to Know About Social Work Degree Programs, Social Work Licensure, and Employment Opportunities. Dr. Murali Nair, Director of the School of Social Work, will discuss the requirements and opportunities of the popular BSW and MSW degree programs.

Open House April 2, 2011

Faculty Presentations, 9:00 am – 2:30 pm

Rhodes Tower 502 (Inside Michael Schwartz Library)

Session I: 9:00-9:30 am
Evan Lieberman (Communication).
From the Classroom to the Set: The Challenges of Teaching Film Production. This presentation will focus on the challenges of training students in moving image production, a field that combines technology, business, and art.

Session II: 9:45-10:15 am
Holly Holsinger (Theatre and Dance).
Lesson One: We Are All Actors. Learn to implement the tactics and behaviors of everyday human interaction through this exploration of the basic principles of acting.

Session III: 10:30-11:00 am
Regennia Williams (History).
Zora Neale Hurston in the History of American Arts and Letters. From the Harlem Renaissance through the era of World War II, Zora Neale Hurston was recognized as one of the most gifted and prolific writers in America. This lecture will provide a brief introduction to the author's life and discuss the impact of her most famous novel, Their Eyes Were Watching God.

Session IV: 11:15-11:45 am
Murali Nair (Social Work).
Everything You Want to Know About Social Work Degree Programs, Social Work Licensure, and Employment Opportunities. Dr. Murali Nair, Director of the School of Social Work, will discuss the requirements and opportunities of the popular BSW and MSW degree programs.

Session V: 12:00-12:30 pm
Paul Skalski (Communication).
Advanced Video Game Technologies: Research and Implications. This session spotlights research on advanced video game technologies being conducted in the CSU School of Communication, and focuses on the future of gaming.

Session VI: 12:45-1:15 pm
James Marino (English).
English for Fun and Profit. A presentation about the skills English majors learn at Cleveland State and the many uses for those skills after Cleveland State.

Session VII: 1:30-2:00 pm
Peter Dunham (Anthropology).
CSU's Maya Mountains Archaeological Project: A Retrospective. Dr. Peter Dunham explores one of the last great wilderness areas in Central America. Join him as he revisits some of the amazing finds from his National Geographic-sponsored fieldwork in Belize. Highlights include over a dozen previously unreported ruins, a host of ultra-rare wooden artifacts, and two ancient Maya chocolate groves still growing after 1,200 years.